

Definition

SMED: Single-minute exchange of die(s).

SMED is the abbreviation for the English single-minute exchange of die and must in fact be understood as a "single-digit minute exchange » = "change in less than ten minutes"

It is an organizational method whose goal is to systematically reduce the preparation and adjustment time between two production sets.

